Increase Not Sustained.

Former Commissioner Rudolph was moted as saving that ground values in the District of Columbia are to be figured as increasing at the rate of $12,-000,000 a year.

"Not in the last three years, I should say," explained Mr. Browne, "because of business depression and the collapse of the speculative boom."

He continued:
"The assessor's report of 1910 said there would be an increase of $30,000,000 in the triennial assessment, but when his assessment came out it showed merely an assessment came out it showed merely an increase of $18,000,000. Twelve million was missing. Later, when there was an increase that $12,000,000 was found plastered all over the small home-owning area of the District. "On some of the pages of books referring to assessments erasures have been so skillfully made that one cannot discover them unless the paper is turned up almost on the level of the eye, and by the aid of a glass it can be seen that lower figures of assessment have been substituted for higher ones. "The assessor's office is filled with errors, and the fact that the tax bills are made out in the assessor's office keeps those errors from being discovered, and prevents a proper balance in the District's tax affairs from being reached. It has been recommended by Auditor Tweedale that the function of making bills be removed from the assessor's office, but the assessor has always resisted."

"Why?" asked Representative Cooper.

"Because he wants to keep the axion of the city, and that they are not said anything about them except that they are not large property owners," Mr. Worthington volunteered.

He produced a table showing the number of evictions in Washington, stating that in a series of years they exceed the number of new rentals. He claimed also that the reason for large numbers of unrented houses is found in the fact that people cannot afford to

Assessment of U. S. Property.

Assessment of U. S. Property.

Mr. Browne then took up the matter of assessments of government-owned property in the District, saying that District assessors had taken it upon themselves from time to time to make such assessments, though the government property was exempt from taxation.

He referred first to an assessment of government property made by former Assessor Hope Darneille in 1904.

"Mr. Macfarland, who is appearing for the citizens' committee," said Mr. Browne, "was chairman of the board of District Commissioners at that time, and as the assessor is a subordinate officer and all his assessments must be approved by the District Commissioners, it is to be supposed that Mr. Mao-

Rock Creek Park $2,408,964 $3,600,030 "Now, why did both assessors treat Potomac Park's 739 acres so severely and Rock Creek Park's 1,600 splendid acres so gently?" continued Mr. Browne. "For the simple reason that Potomac Park is off by itself with no adjacent comparable privately owned areas, while Rock Creek Park lies in a long string, flanked on both sides by the highly speculative, highly valuable and grossly under-assessed properties of the great syndicates, and there the ob-extremely odious and extremely undesirable."

Mr. Browne declared that the assessment of government property here was not properly one of the duties of the assessor's office, and that it was a "piece of impudence" undertaken merely to give aid to the half-and-half plan.

"Bear in mind, now, that there was a increase of only $18,000,000 in a boom time. Now, following the collapse of the real estate boom, but with a new adminstrate of the real estate boom, but with a new adminstrate of the result.

Mr. Browne wanted to know why Assessor Richards had assessed Analostan Island, which he said was admirably situated for terminal facilities, at only situated for terminal facilities, at only about $1,200 an acre, while he assessed Potomac Park, just across the channel from it, at from $66,000 to $67,000 an acre. Joseph Leiter, he said, owns Ana-"I propose to show the inefficiency of the assessor's office. Much has been made here of the fact that the office is free from outside political influence, but it has never been free from the enormous local influence to keep down taxes and bolster the half-and-half plan."

He then referred to the old District building investigation started by the late Oden Horstmann, and declared that the results of the investigation district Commissioners to know late Oden Horstmann, and declared that the results of the investigation disclosed a member of the board of assessors "up to his ears" in real estate deals and profiting largely because of his ability to work the assessment end of the deals from the inside.

"The assistant corporation counsel was instructed by the then Commissioners to make no presentation in this, the Kalbfus case," Mr. Browne declared.

"Instructed by whom?" he was asked.

"By the District Commissioners then acting," reaching a proper assessment on build-ings, and that such a plan should be followed here.

Refers to Testimony.

References to testimony and conclusions by some of the District committee members at the time of the insurance investigation and the George report were brought into Mr. Browne's statement, one of them being Mr.

Testified as to Property Value.

Col. Worthington asked: "Was there any proof at the George nquiry that the McLean property is worth $20,000 an acre?" "It depends on what you would consider proof." "I mean, did any one testify as to its value?"

"I did," Mr. Browne replied. "And I might as well say right here that I have received the highest price in the District for testifying as to realty values. In this city, where I am comparisons would have been known to some as the enemy of the extremely odious and extremely unde- half-and-half and a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde—although I do not wish to appear too popular with myself—I would like to be known as an expert in eal estate values. He declared again that the George report, plus the insurance investiga-tion, had done more to get a proper tion, had done more to get a proper assessment here than anything else. Also, he said, in a reply to Representative Gard, who asked why the District of Columbia did not need the half-and-half plan now, that the city has had an enormous growth in wealth; that with federal contributions it had received all the necessary sewers, water plants, streets, schools, etc., and is now a going concern. ow a going concern.

"If the government calls on the Dis-

"If the government calls on the District for police service, ought it not to pay for that service" asked Representative Cooper.
"No," replied Mr. Browne, who went to not o say that the government ought to have its own police department. He said that as a matter of fact, except in the case of the White House and the parks, government property here is policed by employes of the federal government.

Senator Chilton asked if it would not Senator Childon asked in the senator Childon and thing to have a divided police authority in the city. Senator Works said that after all the police of the District were the police of the federal government anyway, following out his contention made earlier in the hearing fection. that the District was merely a fiction anyway and that the federal govern-ment was the supreme power here.

Increases Land Values.

Mr. Browne continued his single tax argument, urging that land values argument with the property of th ere created here by two things alone, for the Believes Records Were Not Used.

"That was the astounding information given me," said Mr. Browne, "Records which would be of great value to future assessors not kept."

He said that the office of the building inspector was full of valuable records which the assessor could use, but Mr. Browne insisted that he did not believe the assessor had made use of these records, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Richards had said in an official report that he had done so.

"If he did so at all, it was in such a small degree that it could not properly be termed making use of these records of the building inspector's office," said Mr. Browne. "I charge that the assessor had made use of the building inspector's office," said Mr. Browne. "I charge that the assessor had made use of the building inspector's office," said Mr. Browne. "I charge that the assessor had been gulty of neglect of duty, went of his view of the situation. He the activities of the federal government

Senator Works here made a statement of his view of the situation. He said that in the minds of the people of the District there seemed to have grown up the idea that there were two jurisdictions in Washington, one the federal government and the other the District government.

"They have been led to believe that they have some control over the affairs of the National Capital, he added. "There is no truth whatever in that belief. The government of the United States has the exclusive jurisdiction in the National Capital, the officers of the District government are the officers of the United States. This mistaken belief is one of the things giving rise to much of the confusion existing today. The people of Washington ought to be treated just as are Making further argument for the single tax, he told how land values in Vancouver, where the single tax had been adopted, had increased enormously, until, with a population of only 106,006, that city raises $3,500,000 annually from land taxes, while in Washington, with a population of 250,000, the taxes from the land alone each year amounts only to about $3,000,000.

No Officeholding Class.

The Wisconsin republican squared himself, and began again:

"The senator has made a reference to an 'officeholding class' in this country, and there is no such thing, and I say with all courtesy to him that he himself knows it. There is no such thing as an officeholding class, I repeat, and such an institution belongs only to a country such as England, where seats in the house of lords are hereditary, for instance. But in this country, would you call it an officeholding class that takes examinations to see if it is fit to hold office. For in-the seats of the hold office is fit is fit to hold office.
